...sh and German Statesmen Cited As Reason for Believing That Conditions Would Be More Easily Agreed Upon After Rumanian Campaign Reaches Decision

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Berlin, Nov. 13, via London, Nov. 15.—(Delayed)—The opening of peace negotiations may perhaps be expected with fair prospects of success in the course of the coming winter, according to Count Albert Apponyi, veteran Hungarian leader and former Hungarian premier. Count Apponyi, who is visiting Germany to deliver two addresses on Hungarian history, expressed his views in an interview given to a correspondent of the Associated Press, in which he discussed the general European situation.

"We cannot expect," he said, "to see peace negotiations opened within the next few weeks, while the Rumanian campaign is still undecided, however I regard our chances for our success as excellent, and once Rumania is crushed, I think both sides will be willing to consider the question of peace Rumania was the entente's last card and is proving a losing one We are massing a big army against the Rumanians and I think that the end will come shortly. Of course, our progress on the Transylvanian frontier is a bit slow, owing to the great difficulties of the country and particularly to the deficiency in rearward communications These communications are far poorer than in the west or even in Galicia and Russia However the entry of Rumania into the war has in many respects been really advantageous to us"

To illustrate what he regards as the improving chances for peace negotiations the count referred to recent speeches of statements in the opposing camps.

"Not Lloyd George of course," he interjected parenthetically, "but such as Lord Grey and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg for example."

He suggested a comparison between the utterances of these leaders a year ago and at present "Then" he said, "their respective standpoints were as far apart as the poles but now although there are still wide differences between them, they have been eliminated from the British pronouncements and the agitation for annexation is dwindling in Germany.

"Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg," he went on, "has pointed out in his latest speech that he has never demanded the annexation of Belgium. Such instances as these show, in my opinion, that there are now no really insuperable obstacles to the opening of a discussion on future peace. Of course the kingdom of Poland must stand but I believe Russia can be brought to reconcile herself to this situation"

Count Apponyi was asked if he thought the impulse to start peace discussions could come from within the camps of the warring powers or whether from outside in the form of a tender of good offices from a neutral personage or power would be necessary. He replied that he saw no reason why neutral mediation should not be welcomed when the opportune moment to which he had referred should arrive and added that he saw no reason why President Wilson should not be acceptable as an intermediary.

"We feel of course," he said, "that President Wilson has not treated us fairly and that he has de-

SON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF MOTHER, JAN. 30

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Buffalo, Nov. 15.—Charged with murdering his mother by shooting and beating her to death at midnight, January 30 last, John Edward Teiper was brought into court for trial here today. At her home his sister Grace, who is expected to be the chief witness in the trial, lay under the care of a physician, her mind said still to be a blank as to events immediately preceding the assault, it is charged Teiper made upon her at the same time and place their mother met death. It is understood that both defense and prosecution are agreed that it will be necessary to take Miss Teiper's evidence by deposition at home

It is said that the defense expects her evidence to support Teiper's claim that the crimes were committed by an unknown man, supposedly a negro, who attacked his mother, sister and brother, Frederic to rob them as their automobile stood in the roadway near here. The brother also met death and Teiper is charged with his murder as well as with assault with intent to kill his sister, but it is only for the murder of his mother that he was placed on trial.

Miss Teiper's testimony, it is also hoped by the defense, will show that there was no lack of harmony among the members of the family, as to money matters

Miss Agnes M. Teiper, the murdered mother, was a widow, her husband having left an estate estimated at $50,000, which was to be divided equally among the children upon her death.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Boise, Ida., Nov. 15.—All of the county prosecuting attorneys of Idaho today began an investigation into alleged frauds at last week's elections.

In several counties, it has been asserted that the total votes cast exceeds the number of ballots actually used. Grand jury investigations are authorized by the attorney-general. Suspicion of the officials was first aroused by the increase in Idaho's total vote from 107,000 in 1914 to about 140,000 this year, although the population has not been greatly increased.

NEW REPORT

On Car Supply Is Ordered by State Utilities Commission From Railroads

COAL EMBARGO REPORTED

Commission is Told That B. & O. is Holding Up Coal Shipments Outside of Akron Where Coal Famine is Threatened—Cold Wave Makes Situation More Serious

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Columbus, Nov. 15.—Anticipating a serious coal shortage in Ohio due to reported lack of facilities on the part of the railroads for handling coal and following reports from Akron, Ohio, this morning that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company had placed an embargo on coal into Akron, the public utilities commission today ordered all railroads in Ohio to report by Friday of this week all cars under load in Ohio as well as unloaded cars, to ascertain whether embargoes have been placed upon any other commodities, and to what extent coal cars are being diverted to other than coal carrying purposes.

The city of Akron was reported to be confronted by a coal famine, because the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had placed an embargo on coal going into that city. The railroad company is said to have refused to allow any more coal to go into Akron until cars already under load there were unloaded.

The sudden turn to cold weather this week made the coal shortage more serious. The Ohio fuel supply company today cut off some of its large commercial users of gas in order to take care of its domestic consumers. This has resulted in a bigger demand for coal.

By its latest order the public utilities commission indicates that it is going to the bottom in the investigation of the car supply in Ohio. Railroad companies charge that shippers are using their coal cars for transporting other products. The report ordered by the commission is expected to show to what extent coal cars are diverted to other lines.

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Thirty-three counties in California remained to be heard from today in the official election canvass. Early returns from five counties made the difference between the lowest Democratic elector and the highest Republican elector 5,631, the lowest Democrat having that majority.

Both parties admit that a big discrepancy would have to be found in order to change the California result.

Coal Shortage Cause of Low Gas Pressure, the Company Claims

Charges that the Newark Natural Gas & Fuel company was discriminating against the consumers of Newark on account of the present controversy between the city and the gas company, relative to the division of the "escrow fund," today were made by Councilman W. C. Seward and several other prominent business men who have made a study of gas consumption.

The charges of discrimination grew out of the low gas pressure which has existed in Newark since yesterday morning, when the first severe cold snap of the season struck the city. With the rapid fall in temperature, came as rapid a fall in gas pressure. In many homes there was barely enough gas to cook meals, while in some parts of the city, the pressure has been so low, that gas lights were put out of commission.

The local office of the gas company has been besieged with inquiries as to the reason for the gas shortage, but the only information obtainable was to the effect that the sudden cold spell and the great shortage of coal which has made the demand for gas much heavier, were responsible. No assurance of how soon the pressure would become stronger, could be given by the local officials.

Firemen at the West End fire department this morning complained that all day Tuesday they were without gas at the fire station. Last night at 9 o'clock they said the pressure came on again, but this morning dropped so low that it was impossible to burn the gas lights.

This condition has caused considerable criticism to be heaped upon the heads of the gas company by the consumers, who several months ago were compelled by an ordinance passed by the city council, to pay a higher gas rate.

The ordinance was passed March 6, 1916, and embodied the following agreement in section 5 of the measure:

"That the Newark Natural Gas and Fuel company shall maintain a pressure at the meter of the consumer of not less than 4 ounces to the square inch at all times save and except where a lesser pressure is temporarily brought about by act of God or accident beyond the control of said company."

This proposition, councilmen say, was talked over with officials representing the gas company, who said the company could easily maintain the 4 pound pressure at all times. With this understanding in mind council decided to pass the ordinance which increased the gas rate from 15 to 25 cents per thousand feet.

Then during the past few months the gas company was busily engaged in soliciting new consumers and advertising the fact that it was in a position to furnish plenty of gas to all the consumers. The officials of the company say they could have made good their promises had not the price of coal and its shortage forced the demands for gas to the limit of their resources.

Councilman Knauber in discussing the gas shortage this morning said he did not know what action council could take to make the company abide by the ordinance as passed last March, but thought the City Solicitor could place the matter before the Utility Commission for an investigation. He said if charges of discrimination were made against the company to the commission it would bring a showdown, and if the company refused to abide by the orders of the commission, a receiver could be appointed to take over the gas business and ascertain what caused the shortage.

"We've got our ordinance in which the gas company agreed to maintain a pressure of 4 ounces at the consumer's meter at all times," Mr. Knauber said, "and I believe it is now up to the city solicitor to take the action necessary to make the company comply with the measure"

Councilman Thomas E. Adams said he had heard nothing about the low pressure at the Market House, where he has a stand, but that at his home, the pressure was good

This is due to my home being located along the main line between Newark and Mt. Vernon," he said. "I would not want to say anything about the low pressure until some complaints have been made to me, because the company may pinch down on us"

City Solicitor Norpell, was reluctant to condemn the company saying he thought perhaps the low pressure was only temporary and due to the sudden demand brought on by the cold snap. He did not believe the company was discriminating, but said if he found it was, he would take some action. He did not know just what course he would pursue, as he wanted time to consider the matter.

"There is no question in my mind but what the company is discriminating against the consumers," Mr. Seward said this morning. "I don't know what action council can take, but if the low pressure continues, there will be plenty of action"

Louis F. Carl, manager of the local office, blamed the coal shortage to the low pressure

"In the fall our industries usually abandon gas and use coal during the winter, but this year they were unable to get coal and consequently we could not shut them off until they received their coal shipments," he said. "In several instances since the coal shortage has been on we have carried a factory along until it received a car of coal, and then turned the gas on."

There is no truth in the report that we are discriminating against consumers of Newark, because the low pressure is simply due to the sudden cold wave and the heavy demand for gas, caused by hundreds

SPECIAL

Session of Legislature to Investigate High Prices May Be Called

WOULD MEET ABOUT DEC. 1

Governor Willis Probably Would Ask to Have Appointments Confirmed and Coal Car Shortage Probed—Ten Prominent Republican Officials Have Not Been Confirmed

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Columbus, Nov. 15.—A special session of the legislature may be called at once by Governor Willis to investigate the high cost of living and incidentally to confirm appointments made by Gov. Willis before he leaves office January 1.

"The governor is giving the question serious consideration," said Secretary Tipton today. If such a call is issued it is not considered likely that the session would begin before Dec. 1.

Up until today Gov. Willis had opposed a special session of the legislature merely to confirm his appointments but at a conference of the department heads and Republican leaders with the governor last night it was pointed out that a real emergency existed and that the demands of the Ohio miners made upon the governor this week for an investigation of the high cost of living should be made the subject of a state and federal probe.

It was this suggestion which the governor was giving serious consideration to today. Ohio miners in their petition to the governor and President Wilson for an investigation of the high cost of living charged "unfair and illegal speculation of foodstuffs and other necessary commodities" as being the cause of the high cost of living in their demand for an investigation.

The coal car shortage situation in Ohio and subsequent high prices charged for coal may also be included in the investigation if one is started. The coal situation is becoming serious with the arrival of cold weather. The governor has already directed the state utilities commission to investigate this subject.

While Gov. Willis has expressed his wishes that his appointees resign with him at the end of the year, state Republican leaders take a different attitude and are said to be urging Republicans appointed by the governor to hold on to their jobs when the change of administration comes.

Among appointees of Governor Willis not yet confirmed are C. C. Philbrick, Democratic member of the state board of administration whom governor-Elect Cox announced in a campaign speech he would fire five minutes after he was inaugurated, Dr. E. H. Rorick, Republican member of administration; Rev. Z. B. Campbell, Republican and S. D. Webb, Democrat, members of the state civil service commission, J. H. McGiffert and E. M. Fullington, Republican members of the state tax commission; M. M. Rose, of Marietta and Frank Hay of Canton, Republican members of the state liquor license commission, Louis M. Day, Democrat of Chillicothe, member of the state utilities commission and the industrial commission.

RAILROADS

Will Universally Oppose the Eight Hour Law With Action in Court

RUSH CASE TO HIGH COURT

Pennsylvania Lines and the New York Central Latest to Start Proceedings Against Adamson Law—Brotherhoods Will Not Oppose Suits Depending Upon Attorney General

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

New York, Nov. 15.—The New York Central railroad will shortly file in the federal court here the first injunction suit to be brought by an eastern road to test the constitutionality of the Adamson eight hour law, it was announced by Albert H. Harris, general counsel for the New York Central. The action, it is understood, will be directed against H. Snowden Marshall, United States district attorney here and several local officers of the four trainmen brotherhoods. A temporary stay will be sought which would enjoin the defendants from instituting prosecutions against the road to compel it to carry out the law.

According to a report published here today the action of the United States will shortly select one of the railway suits and push it through to a decision which, should it be unfavorable to the government would then be at once taken to the United States supreme court.

Railway managers comprising the "national conference committee" continued today consideration of whether wholesale legal action to defeat the Adamson eight hour law will be taken or whether a limited series of injuctions will be filed. The consensus of opinion was said to favor the former course, which would result in 5000 actions, covering the entire railroad territory of the United States. Which ever method is selected, the cases are expected to be in the courts within ten days.

In view of the fact that the Newlands committee is to hold public hearings on the railroad situation generally beginning next Monday there was an indication that definite action would be postponed until the conclusion of these hearings.

Two developments stood out prominently today in the new situation arising from the forthcoming application of the Adamson law.

First, the announcement that the managers of the roads would probably apply for injunctions against the law in every federal court district in the United States with a separate suit in behalf of every one of the two hundred railroads in every district which they enter. Should this step be taken and the litigation involved run the ordinary course of legal proceedure, the eight hour law will be from six months to two years behind time in going into effect, even if found constitutional, it was declared.

Second, the brotherhoods of trainmen announced that they will make an appeal to President Wilson to give them on Jan. 1 next the eight hour day, which they say was promised them at Washington last summer when the strike order was recalled.

The brotherhoods, it was announced, will not contest the suits to be instituted by the roads and will not appear by counsel in court to argue for the constitutionality of the eight hour law. They contend that the duty logically devolves upon the attorney general and will look to the judicial branch of the government to fight their battle.

Prior to his departure for his home in Cleveland, Warren S. Stone, chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, declared that should the law be stricken from the books on the

SEVEN MILLIONS G. O. P. EXPENDED, IT IS ALLEGED

Department of Justice and Senate to Take a Hand in Investigating Reported Frauds.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Washington, Nov. 15.—Election frauds, alleged to have been committed in several states, particularly in those where the result was close, as to be prosecuted with every resource at the command of the department of justice.

Among the phases of the case said to have been brought to Attorney General Gregory's attention is the charge that the Republican committee disbursed the enormous sum of $3,000,000 in the last few days preceding the election, and that the total expenditures of the committee reached the unprecedented sum of $7,000,000.

The senate, as well as the department of justice, is expected to take a hand in the investigation. Chairman Doremus, of the Democratic congressional committee, after a visit to the White House said tentative plans are under way for an inquiry into the use of money for corrupt purposes.

The charge now is made that the election of New and Watson in Indiana to the senate over Kern and Taggert was due to the colonization of negro voters in doubtful districts and the use of enormous sums of money. The same charge is made with regard to the defeat of Chilton in West Virginia.

These charges must be investigated by the new senate. Kern is chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, which would conduct the investigation. But he will be a contestant and not a member of the new senate. Pomerene, of Ohio, will be chairman. Those in charge of the finances of the Republican campaign are to be summoned and put on the grill.

Ditspatches from New York state Republican leaders co such an inquiry. The nat committees have 90 days from the election in which to make their final reports. None of the reports are in to date.

It is announced at the department of justice that despite the fact that the election is over the investigations conducted by secret agents are being carried on just as vigorously as before and without regard to the political party which may be involved. All violations of the law wherever found will be treated alike, it was stated, and prosecutions will be instituted according to the evidence, no matter which side may be hit.

The investigation is being directed by Assistant Attorney General Graham under instructions from Attorney General Gregory.

It is said Mr. Gregory's attention was called to the extravagant expenditures of the Republican national committee in some of the close states by Chairman McCormick, of the Democratic committee, as it was after these representations had been made that Assistant Attorney General Graham was given instructions to pursue the investigation wherever there seemed reason to believe that the election laws had been violated. Mr. Graham said such action as may finally be taken will become publicly known when prosecutions are instituted in the districts where the law has been violated.

The investigations are in no way political matters and will be so treated. Where the facts developed justify prosecutions promptly will be instituted.

PEACE

parted from the way of strict neutrality. But even though one does not like a person that is no reason for rejecting his services when these may be useful."

The Hungarian statesman believes that the war should not only end because of what he regards as the futility of further hostilities, but because of his expressed conviction as to the menace of Russia. He declared that the western states of Europe must band themselves together for defense against Russia, which country he characterized as the great menace to the future peace of Europe and the world. In his opinion France's efforts to regain Alsace-Lorraine are doomed to failure and the republic may be well reconcile herself to peaceful and friendly relations with her eastern neighbors.

He holds that Great Britain has made an abortive effort to crush Germany as a trade rival by appeal to arms but that there is nothing essential in the character of the three nations to prevent their union as friends. In respect to Russia, however, on the other hand, Count Apponyi declared that the organization of the country contains the germs of war and that she is compelled by the very essence of her being to attempt to extend her domination at every opportunity over the nations with which she is in contact.

"Once this war is finished," he said, "Europe will probably have at least twenty-five or thirty years of peace until the generation which has passed through this conflict has departed from the stage. This should give time and opportunity to a wise and far seeing diplomacy by which the western states of Europe can arrange for protection against the disturbing element in the east."

Count Apponyi says that his views are shared by all leading Hungarians and with the possible exception of certain Slavonic elements in Austria are also held by the leaders in that country.

Conception goes in leaps and bounds, while thought lags behind.

of domestic places cutting in on the gas mains."

K. C. Krick, legislative agent for the Logan company, at his office in Columbus today denied discrimination against the Newark consumers, on account of the "escrow fund" controversy and said the company bore no ill feelings toward the Newark people.

"It is simply the sudden demand for gas by thousands of consumers, who have been unable to meet the coal price or cannot get coal, who have piped gas into their furnaces," he said. "I was talking to a man in Columbus yesterday who told me that more than 2,000 furnaces in Columbus are now burning gas, where last year coal was used."

"Why we are having the hardest time in the history of the company to straighten the thing out. And unless the coal porposition is straightened out in some way, I can't say how far we can go. But I do not thing the gas shortage will continue. I believe it is only temporary, but we are battling to meet the demand in the best way possible."

Mr. Krick said the gas business was subject to so many unaccountable things that the officials could not anticipate what would happen next.

"The industrial, commercial and domestic demands have increased heavily for the past five weeks," he said, "and whenever it is possible we are cutting off the industries in order to increase our domestic supply."

A prominent citizen who has made a study of gas consumption said this morning there was no reason for a gas shortage. He said the company was continually asking for new business and advertising that it had an adequate supply.

He pointed out that for the past week the weather bureau has predicted the coming of the cold wave, and that the gas company has had adequate time to make preparations for meeting the demands.

Next Monday night's council meeting will be watched with considerable interest by every gas consumer in the city who are anxious to know where the members stand in regard to the gas question, and whether the company will be permitted to violate the ordinance passed last March, or be compelled to furnish the pressure required as per agreement.

An investigation will be made by several of the members and a report of their findings made known at the meeting.

McCORMICK CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT; HIS WORK PRAISED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Washington, Nov. 15.—Chairman Vance C. McCormick of the Democratic National committee, will confer Friday with President Wilson. There have been many reports that Mr. McCormick would enter the cabinet, but no indication has been given as to what place might be offered to him. Mr. McCormick's conduct of the campaign was praised today by Colonel E. M. House, a White House visitor.

Vegetables in Tudors' Time.

What did people eat before they had the potato as a staple article of diet? Apparently they had most of the vegetables that we have now. Of Londoners in the time of the Tudors, Sir Walter Besant tells us that they ate lettuce as a separate dish before the meat, used turnip leaves as a salad and roasted the turnip itself in wood ashes. Horseradish and carrots were known to them, and capers were served boiled in oil or vinegar. Cucumbers, radishes, parsnips and cabbages also figured at the Tudor meal table, for which, by the way, they boiled their oysters and spread their beef with honey. It would be fun in these days to eat—or refuse—a Tudor meal.—London Chronicle.

Truth today is the same old truth of yesterday, only older.

FLORY WINS BIG LAW SUIT AT CLEVELAND

A $55,000 verdict, one of the largest ever returned in a personal damage suit in Ohio, and which William R. Wallis, advertising writer, obtained from Edward W. Moore, traction magnate, has just been upheld by the court of appeals in Cuyahoga county.

Mr. Wallis claims he was injured when his auto was struck by one driven by Mr. Moore at Gordon park about three years ago. The case has been in court three times.

On the first hearing, the jury found a verdict of $30,000 for Mr. Wallis, which was later set aside. On the second trial the jury disagreed and on the third hearing gave a verdict for $55,000. Mr. Wallis has since consented to a reduction of $15,000 from this amount.

Mr. Wallis was represented in the trial by Walter L. Flory, son of Jesse A. Flory and brother of Licking county prosecutor-elect, Charles L. Flory, of this city. Mr. Flory is a member of the Cleveland law firm Thompson, Hine and Flory. He is one of the Newark boys who has "made good."

ground of unconstitutionality, the brotherhoods would depend on President Wilson to have framed another act which will withstand the attacks of hostile counsel.

JUSTICE DEPT. TO ACT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Washington, Nov. 15.—Attorney General Gregory has decided that suits by railroads against enforcement of the Adamson eight hour law will be defended by the department of justice. The defense to be presented in each case will be worked out between Solicitor General Davis and other department officials with United States attorneys in various jurisdictions.

The department today was unable to determine whether it would be necessary to defend each of the many suits already begun or whether the railroads would be content to make a test case of one suit. No word has reached the attorney general from the railroads suggesting such course and if such a proposal is not made each suit will be defended.

Reports that railroad and brotherhood officials had considered a suggestion that Mr. Gregory be asked to suspend operation of the Adamson law for thirty days were met with the statement that the attorney general has no such authority and that his only course is to defend the suits or let them go by default.

Department officials in charge of the defense stated today that no offers had been made from the attorney general for making a test case of any particular suit. It was pointed out that the granting or refusal of a temporary restraining order by one federal judge but have no binding effect in law upon any other judge of equal rank and that at best its force would be only argumentative. It was said also that the department has no reason to believe that each railroad may not prefer to fight its suit in the hope that it at least will be successful.

The principal defense against all the suits will be that it is constitutional and that congress did not exceed its powers in enacting it.

PENNSY SUIT STARTED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Philadelphia, Nov. 15.—The Pennsylvania railroad company today filed in the federal district court here a bill in equity asking for an injunction against the three U. S. district attorneys in Pennsylvania forbidding them from bringing prosecutions against the railroad company under the Adamson eight hour law. The court is asked to declare that the eight hour law is unconstitutional and void.

The bill avers that the complainant is advised that the requirement of the Adamson act in respect to the wages to be paid after January 1, is legally invalid and inoperative and consequently not binding upon the complainant because of the many inconsistent and conflicting interpretations of the act.

The act is unconstitutional, the bills avers, because it seeks to deprive the complainant as well as the employes subject thereto of liberty of contract in respect to the terms of employment and the wages to be paid.

BOWSER'S SCHOOL IS OPENED WITH LARGE CROWD

More than two hundred persons last night attended the big opening of the Newark Physical Culture Institute, in the Music Hall building in West Main street, and enjoyed an excellent program of athletic stunts, arranged by Manager Paul Bowser, world's middleweight wrestling champion.

The program consisted of wrestling, boxing, hand ball, volley ball, exhibitions of club swinging and dumb bell exercises and a talk along physical culture lines by Mr. Bowser. Motto and Bowser wrestled together with several more of Bowser's pupils and the Amarino brothers who staged a wrestling preliminary last Thursday night, put on a boxing exhibition.

The crowd was very enthusiastic about the institute and a number of membership cards were signed. The membership list is rapidly increasing and will in a short time be not only the largest athletic club in the city, but will be comprised of many of Newark's leading business men.

Mr. Bowser plans to keep the rooms open to the members between the hours of 10:30 o'clock in the morning and 10:30 o'clock in the evening. An attendant will be in charge at all times.

SO TRANSFORMED THAT FRIENDS DO NOT KNOW HER
Mrs. Frank McClure, Pierce St., Looks Like Another Woman Thanks to Nerv-Worth.
These columns have carried many a wonderful Nerv-Worth statement, but none more extraordinary than the following, which was made at the Nerv-Worth office, Zanesville, last Saturday by Mr. Frank McClure of that city. So profoundly grateful was Mr. McClure for the recovery of his seriously sick wife that he visited the office for the express purpose of telling the facts, so the fellow-sufferers might profit by them through publication. And this is what he said:
Nerv-Worth Co.: When we moved to Pierce St. from Philo last March, my wife weighed about 85 pounds. All her life she had been seriously troubled with constipation, for three years her stomach had given her constant trouble, getting worse all the time. After she had been treated by four different physicians, we decided to try Nerv-Worth.
The first dozen doses brought a marked change for the better. Her digestion improved, her strength grew. When she had taken the first bottle she began to gain steadily in weight and the constipation also began to disappear. And now, having taken three bottles of Nerv-Worth, she weighs 117 pounds. Her constipation has totally passed away. SHE CAN EAT ANYTHING SHE WANTS, although before taking Nerv-Worth she had been forced to live on shredded wheat biscuit and buttermilk. Friends who have not seen her since she began taking Nerv-Worth, which was about July 1, 1916, do not know her on the street, so greatly has this tonic built her up in flesh, health and strength.
I had been opposed to patent medicines before this wonderful improvement came to bless my wife, but now I want all those who suffer to know what wonders it has worked in her case. FRANK MCLURE.

CHECK THE COLD BEFORE YOU GET PNEUMONIA

Every year pneumonia brings to untimely death thousands who might have been saved. They neglect cold-germs in the nose and throat, allow them to multiply and spread down the throat and into the bronchial tubes, weaken the lungs, and lay the system open to the first dread touch of resulting pneumonia.

No cold should be allowed to run its course. As soon as it begins, the germs in the nose and throat should be killed by spraying and gargling with clear water into which five to ten drops of Hyclorite have been stirred.

If this is done early enough the cold will never gain headway. If the cold germs are already too deeply intrenched in the nose and throat, the Hyclorite gargle and spray will at least keep them from going farther.

Hyclorite is a solution of sodium hypochlorite. A U. S. Government report has been published, showing that 130 antiseptics were recently tested in military hospitals of Europe and sodium hypochlorite is declared by the surgeons to be the most economical and efficient antiseptic of them all.

Although many times more powerful than the harmful antiseptics which contain poisons, acids, mercury or dangerous preservatives, Hyclorite is even safer than the weak and ineffective peroxides. It is clean, clear and harmless as water—but powerful. Any druggist can supply Hyclorite in 25 and 50 ct bottles. General Laboratories, Madison, Wisconsin.

SCIENTIFIC

REVELATION IS NEEDED TO UNDERSTAND GRANDEUR OF CHRISTIANITY.

Christian Science Lecturer Points to Christ's Healing of Sick as Example of Knowledge Needed.

"The grandeur and reality of Christianity can be understood and appreciated only through scientific revelation which is spiritual and wholly apart from the physical senses. Men and women may be faithful to their religious beliefs but they are not relieved thereby from suffering and distress," said Edward A. Merritt of Cleveland, in the lecture on Christian Science at Taylor Hall Y. M. C. A. building last night. The lecture was heard by an audience which filled the hall. The speaker was introduced by John Sherwood Fleek.

Mr. Merritt reviewed briefly the history of religion and the application of science to Christianity. He declared that the race needs the knowledge of that Science which Jesus demonstrated when he cleansed the lepers, healed the sick, raised the dead and gave His promise that those who seek and find "the Father" he came to unfold to human understanding, shall do the works He did and even greater works. He said in part:

The application of science to religion is no doubt the most vital accomplishment in the progress of mankind. Materialism had kept humanity for many centuries groping in the darkness through false concepts of Christianity. Under the influence and control of Emperor Constantine the power to heal the sick by spiritual means, which had been present in the primitive church for three hundred years, was lost. Ecclesiasticism with its forms and ceremonies, tending to exalt and perpetuate personal worship, and material power and influence were responsible. Centuries elapsed before Christianity could regain the vital spiritual power which its Founder had provided.

Religion according to the popular view, may be defined as the acts and forms through which men express their concepts of God and seek to commune with Him. But is this true religion? Do eccleastical rites and the organized actions of men constitute religion according to the standard of the Founder of Christianity? On the contrary, religion is a moral and spiritual fact. St. James said, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." The grandeur and reality of Christianity, then, can be understood and appreciated only through scientific revelation, which is spiritual and wholly apart from the testimony of the physical senses. Men and women may be faithful to their religious beliefs, but they are not relieved thereby from suffering and distress. It is evident, therefore, that they have not found practical salvation. The great Wayshower, however, taught humanity how to obtain this salvation and made his own life the standard of Christian living and accomplishment.

Consider the simplicity of the teachings of Jesus. He makes two all-important demands upon his followers, namely, to preach and to heal. These are the witnesses of true Christianity. They bear a certain relationship to each other, the healing being a proof of the preaching. Is not this what Christianity must express—the proof that it is divine and at the same time practical?

The demand of this age is proof of the practical availability of every product of human effort. That it may be uplifted, the race needs the knowledge of that Science which Jesus demonstrated when he cleansed the lepers, healed the sick, raised the dead, and gave his promise that those who seek and find "the Father" he came to unfold to human understanding, shall do the works which he did, and even greater works.

Christian Science in its operation is always constructive. Its warfare is waged against false systems, but never aganst persons.

Christian Science maintains that every abnormal or diseased condition is a false concept, a dream from which the sufferer needs to be aroused by understanding the nature of disease. Were this abnormal condition true, disease could not be healed. Christian Science urges upon mankind the abandonment of sin and the relinquishment of the belief in the material senses. It teaches them how to change their ideals and remove their sensual, sick, and selfish thoughts, all of which evolve physical disorders. Instead of relying upon human opinion or upon humand mind, the Christian Scientist turns to the infinite intelligence for guidance and recognizes the spiritual law which Jesus demonstrated and which is today made practical.

The message of healing which Christian Science brings to the world will be more fully understood and helpful to us when we learn something of its discovery and its Discoverer. In the year 1866 Christian Science was discovered by Mary Baker Eddy. Her discovery was unique in the annals of religious history. It involved spiritual or Mind healng, and gave to humanity the promise of health and joy. It heralds to the world a practical, scientific and demonstratable Christianity, restoring to you and to me our birthright of dominion as sons of God.

The Church of Christ, Scientist, was established for the purpose of presenting to the world in an orderly and authoritative manner the teachings of this Science. It is interesting to note that Christian Science defines church as "the structure of Truth and Love; whatever rests upon and proceeds from divine Principle." (Science and Health, p. 583.

Christian Science adopts and interprets the first record of creation, found in the first chapter of Genesis, and bases all of its conclusions upon the premises of this record,—that God is the "great First Cause" of all that is real and eternal. By this promise, divine Science reveals that God is one and supreme, the all-inclusive entity, and according to St. John, this one God is Spirit, is Love, and is All-in-all. Christian Science reveals God as the Divine Principle or law of the universe. He is the one infinite intelligence, wisdom, divine Mind. He is the one infinite consciousness, Being, the creator, origin, source of all reality. He is infinite good and is the only power, strength, activity, law, and government. He is Life, Truth, Love, and bears no more relation to the sorrows, sickness, and distress of human experience than the principle of mathematics bears to the errors in a mathematical problem.

Because God is the only source, man could not originate elsewhere; therefore man is the offspring of Spirit. Because God is the only presence, He is present to the universe, including man, as its source of all Truth, wisdom, intelligence, and Life. He is therefore everpresent to man as good, as health, as power, law, government, and the source of his supply, and as his real substance. He cannot be present to the consciousness of the real man as corporeality, material personality, matter, sin, disease, evil, for these have no part in a God who is Spirit and Love. But He is present to man as the only power that is available to release and redeem him from evil The reason that evil is not true is because God never made evil, hence He never made it present to man, and its seeming presence in human experience constitutes the Adam-dream, or the unreality of the so-called mortal life.

The literal interpretation of Christian Science is the Science of the Christ, Truth, or the exact, demonstrable understanding of the truth; therefore Christian Science includes all science, and is the true mirror which reflects, the original, the perfect man.

Mrs. Eddy was imbued with normal courage to challenge the world with the statement that God is not corporeal, but is divine Principle, Life, Truth, Love. She has given the world a concise statement which epitomizes the facts of being, and which, when understood, eliminates all mystery from Christianity.

Christian Science reveals to us that the image and likeness of God is spiritual, because God is Spirit. Spiritual man is defined humanly as a man thinking spiritually. Since God is All-in-all, then He is the only Mind, and man must think according to that Mind, or his thoughts do not really constitute thinking. Moreover, man reflects the qualities, the substance, the life, the intelligence, the Mind which is God. He reflects the peace, the joy, the wholesome realization of health and happiness. He thinks righteous, good, pure, healthful, loving thoughts, as Paul says, "bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ," and yielding himself the servant, not of sin unto destruction, but of righteousness unto life everlasting.

The working of any problem demand fidelity and consecration to the principle and rule. Good as Principle, "the great First Cause," is immutable. His rules are not movable; they are externally established.

So when one contemplates the solution of the problems of Life according to Principle, he readily recognizes that he cannot solve the problem by entertaining the belief of skin, disease, and death. Every human being on earth encounters difficulties in his daily life. Christian Science shows him that these difficulties are largely due to his own wrong thinking. It shows him that Life can never be demonstrated by belief in hatred, malice, fear, or revenge, which are procuring causes of sickness, of sinkness, sin, and death. The truth does not expand or contract according to man's motives or desires, but remains forever intact and external.

There are approximately fifteen hundred different Christian religious sects or denominations all claiming to be founded upon the teachings of Christ Jesus. These sects or denominations differ wholly or in part on the question of What is the Christ? That the whole of Christendom would be united, were a common understanding reached, is easily seen.

Christian Science declares and demonstrates the fact that the terms Jesus and Christ are not synonymous, but that the term Christ is more in the nature of a title; as expressed in the words Jesus, the Christ, or, broadly interpreted, Jesus, the divinely anointed,—the son or expression of God, his divine spiritual Father or Principle.

Christian Science not only acknowledges the divinity of the Christ, but seeks without ceasing to demonstrate that divinity in human affairs. It would utterly fail in its mission if it did not acknowledge and demonstrate that it is the Mind, or Spirit, which was in Christ Jesus that heals the sick and reforms the sinner. This divine Spirit with which he was endowed without measure was the Christ, the element of the Messiahship, which made him the Wayshower. Christian Science thus presents the Christ as the divine Saviour, the representative of God to humanity. To be divine is to partake of the nature of Deity. Hence the Christ was the divinity of the man Jesus, voicing God's spiritual message to human consciousness.

It was the devout spiritual consciousness of its followers that made Christianity a vital force in the first century, and the same spiritual devotion must characterize it today if it is to be, not a dead letter, but a living reality in our lives. "The true worshipers" said Jesus, "shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth."

Jesus depended upon no other foundation than the right idea of God. In fact he aways admitted that God was his Father, his All-in-all, and that of himself he could do nothing. Knowing that God is Mind, he depended upon Mind alone, and reflected only its power, and was ever about his Father's business, the demonstration of the supremacy of Spirit.

No one in search of freedom from sin, sickness, or error can afford to pass by the portals of Christian Science. Christian Science, as the comforter, comes to this generation hard pressed in the turmoil of human experience, and explains what Jesus did for those who "labor and are heavy laden." To think in the way he thought and to act in the way he acted brings the fulfillment of his promise, "and I will give you rest."

It is freely acknowledged today that the sick and those oppressed by sin and sorrow have been healed and made whole by Christian Science. Christian Science practice has also proved in many well authenticated instances that spiritual healing is possible where material remedies have failed.

We learn in Christian Science that the power, substance, action, and law of God exist now, as they have always existed, and need only to be realized intelligently.

Our text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, has already reached thousands of homes, where it is teaching the way of righteousness and peace, and has established health and joy in place of sickness and sorrow.

This book, Science and Health, carefully studied, has healed practically every ailment and disabled condition. It harmonizes the many seemingly conflicting statements of Scripture. Many who were atheists and agnostics have been made humble followers of the Master through its ministrations, and are now searching the Scriptures for the understanding of the Christ.

Christian Science leads the thoughts of men to a more satisfying life, and brings assurance of divine guidance and spiritual healing. It establishes that trust and confidence which ultimately enables men to realize the "peace of God, which passeth all understanding."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

BUSY FACTORIES POLLUTE STREAMS FISH ARE KILLED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15.—J. A. Viquesney, game and fish warden of West Virginia and N. R. Buller, state fish commissioner of Pennsylvania, conferred here today regarding steps to prevent the pollution of streams by acid and chemicals from industrial plants. According to Mr. Viqesney the great activity of the plants this year, has resulted in an unusual amount of refuse reaching the Ohio river and its tributaries, causing the death of countless numbers of fish.

SHAKY NERVES

Unless you are well advanced in years your hand should be steady.

If your hand, your thumb or foot trembles when you try to hold it still, if the lines are shaky when you write, if you have tremors of your lips or chin, your nerves need strengthening.

These signs often precede a serious nervous breakdown. In meeting this condition it is necessary to exercise care in the diet and take a nervine tonic. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain ingredients that build up the nerves at the same time that they tone up the system in general and their value in preventing nervous disorders from developing cannot be disputed.

They are especially recommended for nervous, run-down people because they are a non-alcoholic tonic.

If you have any nervous troubles write today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for their little book on nervous disorders. It gives methods of home treatment and directions regarding hygiene that every one should have. A diet book will also be sent free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by your own druggist or will be sent direct by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

Election Returns.

The slowness with which election returns came in after the voting of November 7 emphasizes the idea that a great many people are not good counters. It would seem a simple enough matter for a group of men to take a few hundred ballots, classify, count, and tabulate them, and get the footings in a comparatively few hours. But there have been thousands of precincts this time where it took as many days to get the totals as it should have taken hours.

As has been remarked before, some of the states have this work carefully systematized and they get their returns in a few hours. In others the counters muddle along for days. Apparaently they make mistakes so that the total of the number received by the several candidates does not equal the total of the votes cast. So the counters have to go over the different bunches of ballots, trying to locate the errors.

There are a great many people who cannot count and add simple sums accurately. Often they are well educated persons. But somehow they lack concentration of mind. Their attention drifts off to other things and soon they are omitting a number or counting something twice.

Many people get nervous and hurried over any such work as counting or simple arithmetic. Probably many ballot counters, trying to get through their work in a hurry, will count two ballots as one. They worry their perplexed heads, while the crowds around the bulletin boards and the politicians and candidates big and little are cursing the tardy work of compiling the figures.

It is the same way when the majority of people have any sums or figuring to do. They hurry and fail to concentrate and spend three times as much time on it as should be necessary for careful and methodical people.

Not all the delay, however, is due to slow counting. Many voting precincts are far from telegraph and telephone lines and in some of the far west sections the returns were delayed by snow and by poor roads.

Licking county has good wire service and many good roads, though not so many as it should and will have. The election of judges and clerks in this county did their work efficiently and considering the length of the ballot and conditions surrounding the election, the returns were received in Newark from all of the 73 precincts in this county in good time.

"Doubtful" States.

Among the political traditions smashed is the recent election is that of the so-called doubtful states. Formerly these were a little group of commonwealths where the result lay closely in the balance. Money and speakers were poured into those states in a flood.

Meanwhile other states able to stand without hitching were neglected. The condition was abnormal. Concentration of effort in a few states was a temptation to corruption. Meanwhile in the supposedly sure states, so little was going on that the voters did not get much idea of the situation, and the campaign did not have the educational effect that it should.

The past election shows that condition wholly past. All the states are doubtful, except the solid South on one side, and a few old Republican pillars like Vermont, Pennsylvania, Iowa, etc. Hereafter the politicians must cover a wide field.

The millions of voters who stayed away from the polls because their votes would not be needed should reflect on the returns of Nov. 7.

The First Congresswoman.

(Columbus Dispatch.)

The honor of being the first woman member of congress goes to Miss Jeanette Rankin of Montana. Sixty-four congresses came and went with no woman among the lawmakers, but the Sixty-fifth will mark a new era, the beginning of representation by women, as well as men, for it is not to be doubted all the later congresses will, in part, draw their personnel from what we have been pleased to call the "gentler sex."

The appearance of a woman among the lawmakers of the nation will be a novelty, for which it will be difficult to wait till December, 1917. Already there is wonder whether there cannot be an extraordinary session in the spring, so that it may be known how this innovation is going to delight us all. The wits are already at work, picturing to themselves the new order of things when a woman appears in the house of representatives to speak and to cast her vote. They are imagining the inauguration of new rules of behavior—no more smoking in the cloak rooms, no more sitting in those extraordinary poses peculiar to men, more courtesy between members and even a rivalry among the men for the privilege of escorting the lone lady home, after the night sessions.

But let them have their fun: if they do not get it now, they may never get it. Miss Rankin will have a difficult place to fill, but there is no reason to suspect that she will not fill it with due credit to herself, to the women generally and to the country. As a pioneer, she will be the observed of all observers. But with her education and poise, she will not fail to command respect. She will perform her duty as she sees it, and will make no exactions on account of sex. If greater courtesy and more dignified demeanor come because of her presence, they will be free-will offering which the nation will appreciate because they properly belong in an assembly of the nation's lawmakers.

The Next Congress.

(New York Evening Post.)

In the discussion of party alignments in the newly-elected Congress it is just possible that people may overlook the fact that Congress will not meet until December 1917. For a full year Mr. Wilson is at liberty to go on with the development of his policies secure in the Congressional majority he has had until now. The fact that the delicate balance of power in the new Congress does not come into play for a year makes futile much of the speculation and much of the anxiety displayed with regard to a single Congressional vote here or there. Mere accident in a group of 435 men, may in the course of a year make and unmake majorities. But what is not accident is Woodrow Wilson. In the course of a year the President's policies may be depended upon to take out of the present chaos and flux in the opposition ranks a sufficient reinforcement to make Congress a reliable body for most purposes of importance. It is rather idle to wonder what will happen when 215 Democrats meet 215 Republicans in the House of Representatives a year from now. By that time, many things may happen in Republican circles, in and out of Congress.

Mr. Hughes.

(New York Times.)

The time has come for the Republicans to lay on Mr. Hughes the blame of a failure which is not his but theirs. The surprise is, not that he did not do better, but that he did so remarkably well.

It is not Mr. Hughes' fault that there are two wings of the Republican party and that there is only the semblance and pretense of a reunion between them. It is not Mr. Hughes' fault that the Progressives who sincerely believed in progressive legislation and were not merely hero worshippers could not be transferred to the Republican camp when Mr. Roosevelt sought to hand over the whole Progressive party into the hands of its unreconciled enemies. It is not Mr. Hughes' fault if the Progressives, especially in the West, although the same spirit is revealed by the diminished Republican pluralities in Eew England, were attracted by the progressive purroses and achievements of Mr. Wilson's administration. It is not Mr. Hughes' fault that the Republicans had no issues, no clear policies except protection, a scarecrow hung out at the eleventh hour, and inviting only guffaws.

The Republicans simply wanted a change of Administration to "beat Wilson," and they could give no good reasons for the change and the beating. Mr. Hughes was vague and negative. So was his party. What would they do or have done about Mexico, about European questions? Did anybody find out? Apparently they would do or have done what Mr. Wilson did, only in a "firmer" way. Why should the country change certainty for uncertainty? Why, when such grave international questions were pending, should it give notice to the world that its foreign policy was discredited, and so weaken the government and its influence at a serious time?

"Words, not deeds," the Republicans used to sneer in the beginning of their campaign. The deeds of Woodrow Wilson, the multiform fruitful work of his administration, were before the country. They could not be hidden. The deeds were Democratic, the words Republican; and the words were vain.

Coming from the supreme court, Mr. Hughes' voice, like Virgil's in "The Inferno," was "hoarse with long silence." He did not at first show the vigor and fire which were his in 1908. But then and afterward the real weakness was in his cause, not in himself. As he warmed up, as he caught the communicative ardor of crowds, his speeches gained in power; and so far as energy and force of speech can radiate from the advocate of ambiguities imposed on him, he became a campaign orator of no mean degree. But if he had spoken with the tongue of men and angels, what difference would it have made? He had no case. He could give no good reasons why he should succeed Mr. Wilson. The latter's speeches were indeed incomparably superior in form and content, but it was what Mr. Wilson had done, not what he said, that counted.

Mr. Hughes made some obvious mistakes. He should have lammed the hyphen, that now ridiculous and impotent hyphen, early in his campaign. His late renunciation had the air of being forced, as did his declaration against an embargo. His avoidance of Hiram Johnson in California was another blunder, due to Old Guard chaperonship, but the enthusiasts who were to give Mr. Johnson so monstrous a majority are not likely to have taken kindly to Mr. Hughes. And the country is full of independents, free with their knives, as the returns show.

If Mr. Roosevelt had been the Republican candidate, nobody can tell what would have happened. But Mr. Roosevelt is a genius, a sort of elemental force. Mr. Hughes can't be blamed for not being Mr. Roosevelt. Besides, one is enough.

In view of the essential unreality of the Republican "issues," hunted so eagerly and exhibited so vainly; in view of the positive and various strength of Mr. Wilson, Mr. Hughes did better than the Republicans had any excuse for expecting. He conducted himself with dignity through an irritating canvass. He retains the undiminished respect of the country. In this city he will be welcomed as a man of high character and service. In the practice of his profession, in the regard of his fellow citizens, he will find some compensation for his defeat. May his career be as long as it is sure to be honorable.

Oregon and New Hampshire.

(Boston Herald.)

Oregon and New Hampshire stand out with peculiar prominence each as an island in an ocean of opposing opinion. But this is in keeping with the history and traditions of the two States. Oregon is old in the American Union. It came in with the Louisiana Purchase. It acquired Statehood while its now sprightly neighbor to the north was a wilderness. Its chief city is perhaps the most conservative city on our Pacific coast.

Though New Hampshire has not attracted much attention to itself, its electoral vote is so small, it has been an exceedingly close State for the greater part of its political history. On no ground was the fighting more severe from the rise of the anti-slavery issues to the Democratic collapse under Bryan than in the Granite State. It witnessed great controversies in the past in which John P. Hale and Franklin Pierce fought out on New England soil those issues of freedom which were destined to struggle in a greater arena.

Stricken Dumb.

(Baltimore Sun.)

We do not wish to rub it into anybody, but it looks as if several personages conspicuous in the recent campaign had been stricken dumb by the result of the election. One of them heretofore noted for perennial verbosity, has been able to articulate only five words. "I have nothing to say"—during the last few days, and another, the voluble Mr. O'Leary, appears to have had a padlock put upon his lips.

The American people love a fighter, and the hero of Oyster Bay is one. But they admire even more a man who can control his tongue. One of the lessons of the recent campaign is the futility of political billingsgate and the folly of violent and bitter denunciation. Making due allowance for the influence of the European war upon excitable minds, one can see how much stronger Colonel Roosevelt could have made his case had he been master of his tongue and not its slave.

This lesson of the campaign is platitudinous, but valuable. It repeats the old truth that he is mightier who ruleth his spirit than he who taketh a city. When Colonel Roosevelt recovers speech, let us hope that he may better know how to use it.

Congress.

(Philadelphia Record.)

It is not very important whether there shall be a small Democratic or a small Republican majority in the next house of representatives. The majority in any case will be so small that strictly political legislation will be almost impossible. But the results of the past four years are secure.

The new congress will not meet till December, 1917. The senate in the next congress will remain Democratic, and even if Republican legislation could be carried through the house, which is extremely unlikely in a house so closely divided, it cannot get through the senate. The work of the Democratic party cannot be undone, even if further Democratic legislation can be obstructed.

But before the next congress shall come into existence there will be three months of work by a congress strongly Democratic in both branches. As ex-President Eliot, of Harvard university, pointed out some weeks ago, there has been an astonishing amount of important and beneficial legislation in the past three years. That cannot be undone. To that much more can be added during the coming winter.

If the Democratic party must then resign control of the house of representatives for a couple of years it will not be of great significance. Mr. Hughes' threat of wiping out all the work the Democrats have done cannot be executed. The work of four years will be safeguarded by a Democratic senate and a Democratic president, and in 1918 the Democrats will recover—if it be a fact that they have lost—control of the house of representatives, and their majority in the senate will be increased. The legislative achievements of the Wilson administration are perfectly secure.

Mercury is sometimes found in its fluid state, but usually occurs as the sulphide. About one-third of the mercury in the world comes from Spain, but it is also found in Germany, Italy, China, Borneo, Mexico and Peru. California, Texas and Oregon also produce some mercury.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A BOTTLE WENT UP IN A BALLOON.

Threw the Bottle.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn climbed up on to daddy's lap for a story. So he told them: "Once a young man bought a nice bottle of wine to take up in his balloon, along with a rabbit that was to come back to earth in a parachute.

"When the balloon was blown up so it could not get any bigger it became very restless, just as if it wanted to leave the earth. It arose higher and higher. Then the ropes were cut, and up it went with young man, basket, bottle of wine and the rabbit.

"There was a great crashing of band music, and all the people shouted 'Hurrah!'

"'It is a curious feeling to go up in the air like this,' thought our bottle. 'It certainly is a new kind of sailing, and there can't be any danger of running into anything up here.'

"Thousands of people watched the balloon rise, and among them an old maid. She stood by her open window where her birdcage hung that held a linnet. This bird had no drinking fountain, but had to be content drinking out of a little tin cup.

"A pot of myrtle stood on the window sill next to the birdcage. It had been moved a bit to one side, so that it would not get knocked over when the old maid leaned out of the window to see the balloon. She could see the young man in it quite plainly when he let his rabbit down the parachute. Then he opened his wine bottle and drank to the good health of all the crowds below. After this he threw the bottle high up into the air.

"Little did the old maid think that she had seen this same bottle thrown high up into the air by her sailor lover when at their engagement he had drunk to the health of their guests. Of course our bottle had no time to think, because it was so taken by surprise at finding itself suddenly thrown high.

"Far, far below the church steeples and housetops lay in the sunlight, and the people in the crowds looked as tiny as dolls. The bottle sank far more rapidly than the rabbit did. On its way it turned several somersaults in the air. It felt so young and so gay, but not for long did it feel so.

"What a journey it had! The sun shone upon the bottle, and all the people kept their eyes upon its bright spot. The balloon was now far away, and soon our bottle fell upon a roof. Smash! it broke into many pieces that rolled about upon the ground in a yard. Only the neck was whole, so smoothly broken that it might have been cut by a diamond," daddy ended.

Making the Waistline Trim Again.

A waistline is a very expansive affair. Give it an inch and it will take three if allowed to. Leave it unconfined and unwatched and there is no telling where it will stop, especially if the woman is past first youth. Fatty tissues settles very rapidly around the waist that is not reinforced with firm muscles and since the waist muscles are rarely used after youthful and athletic days are over, fat has every opportunity to grow where it is least limited.

There are women who conscientiously stand for twenty minutes after dinner having heard that this will prevent the waistline from growing larger. But mere standing will do no good unless one stands correctly. The whole secret of right standing and sitting, is the keeping of the waist muscles taut and not relaxed. This means holding the upper part of the figure up, away from the bones of the pelvis and not allowing it to settle down comfortably with relaxed spine.

Always feel that your figure from the waist up is absolutely unsupported by the corset. Always hold it erect by the aid of the spine and waist muscles, and you will find your waist growing slender and longer in line. It is the shortwaisted woman who settled down into her corset when standing or sitting.

The kneeling exercise is excellent for improving the waist line which will certainly grow slimmer and more flexible if the exercise is persisted in ten or more times a day. Kneel on the carpet and slowly bend downward from the waist until arms and hands rest on the floor. Then slowly regain an upright position, letting all the strain come on the waist muscles. This exercise must be done slowly for its best effect. Do not spring up, allowing the muscles of the back to help, but make the waist muscles slowly pull the body upward.

Every Day Etiquette

"I want to Entertain some friends who are unmarried. Is it necessary to have a chaperon?" asked a bachelor of his sister.

"You should certainly ask a married woman to act as a chaperon and it is well to ask her husband also. You should also escort the chaperon to the table." replied his sister.

Truth is not only in expression, but in the impression you make on others.

LOVELY ADDITION TO DIPLOMATIC SET

Baroness E. Akerhielm.

Baroness E. Akerhielm, wife of the counselor of the Swedish legation, has just arrived in Washington where she is already considered one of the handsomest and most attractive members of the diplomatic set. The baroness is an Englishwoman and came here to join her husband, who was previously stationed at Tokio.

Bullock's Oriole.

Like his eastern relative, the Baltimore oriole, this bird's chief claim to fame is his ability as an architect and builder. They called him Bullock's oriole, and he is distinguished from our other orioles by his black throat and orange cheeks. He is found from South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas to the Pacific ocean and from southern Canada to northern Mexico—that is, he can be found there five or six months. Fall and winter find him "somewhere in Mexico."

The Bullock's oriole takes kindly to orchards and is an excellent guardian for the fruit trees during the blossoming season. His favorite morsel is the black olive scale, topped off with a nice fat caterpillar or two.

Emulating the American Indian, the male bird refuses to work, and the tedious task of weaving and suspending the nest is shifted to the female.—Philadelphia North American.

Legend of Mount Omi.

Mount Omi, on the border between western China and Tibet, has the longest staircase in the world. On top of the mountain there stands a Buddhist temple, around which gather some of the holiest traditions of that religion and which is made a Mecca to the Chinese. To facilitate the ascent of its slippery sides some 20,000 steps have been cut in the mountain, forming a single flight, up which the pilgrim toils. Because of its inaccessibility few Europeans have ever visited the spot, but a number of travelers have ascended the stairway and are positive that it is no legendary myth. There is a legend that in earlier times the pilgrim was forced to ascend the mountain without artificial aids until the monks conceived the plan of requiring every pilgrim who would gain especial benefit of his journey to cut a single step.

Opera In Dumb Show.

The late Clara Novello in her reminiscences tells how Malibran once appealed in "Somnambula" without uttering a note. She had taken cold and was prevented from singing at the last moment, though crowds of early comers already filled the house. "On the manager telling her, in despair, that, besides loss of money, these disappointed people would be dangerous she said, 'I can't speak above my breath; I should have to do it in dumb show!' Bunn at once caught at this outburst as if seriously meant and on his knees begged her to try this, and she, fired by the novelty, did so. The grateful public raved in praise of this surprising tour de force, and the sensation it made filled the papers."

Mustaches In England.

Policemen, like soldiers, were at one time forbidden to wear mustaches, and Hull is believed to have led the way to liberty in this respect by passing a resolution permitting the guardians of the peace "to wear a beard and mustache if they think fit." This was in 1859. It was in more recent years that the directors of the Bank of England issued an order forbidding the clerks "to wear mustaches during business hours."—London Chronicle.

Injury Plus Insult.

"Ah," sighed the aged suitor after the young widow had rejected him, "if I only had youth! But, alas! I can never be young again."

"Quite true," she rejoined. "Nature sometimes makes a mistake, but she never repeats it with the same material."—Exchange.

Our Boys and Girls

Wrappers for baby are most useful, not only for cold days for extra warmth, but before and after bathtime. Putting on the wrapper after the bath for the baby's nap not only saves time and much discomfort on the baby's part, but it keeps his dress and petticoats fresh and dry for the rest of the day.

These wrappers are little kimonos made out of French flannel, challis or flannelette; the edges are embroidered, scalloped, hemmed, featherstitched or bound with ribbon. They tie down the front with three sets for ribbons.

The bath apron should be made of flannel, eiderdown or heavy flannelette. There should be two lengths one yard long. The bottoms should be featherstitched and the fold at the top should be bade into a casing through which the ribbon or tape may be drawn, and tied around the waist. In fact, it is two aprons fastened to one belt.

How Some of Them Are Named.

In "Blackfeet Tales of Glacier National Park" J. W. Schultz says that a visitor at his camp told this story about the simple but absurd way in which names are often selected:

A government employer was at Gunsight pass, one of the most weirdly beautiful places in this whole country, putting up a tablet on which were painted arrows that pointed to the different mountains, the name of each peak alongside its particular arrow.

A tourist standing near and watching the work suddenly exclaimed: "Why, over there is a peak which seems to have no name. Can you not name it after me?"

"Certainly I can," the employee answered. He painted another arrow and inscribed beside it, "Lehnert peak."

"And over there is a fine waterfall," the tourist said. "Will you please name it after my little daughter?"

"Sure!" said the man, and he painted another arrow pointing to "Mary Frances falls."

Florida's Curious Spring.

Within a few miles of salt water, at a point not far from Tampa bay, Florida, there is an immense spring, which has formed a pool perhaps 100 yards wide and of great depth. At times the waters of this pool lie clear as the summer air, gradually deepening into the green shadows of its mysterious depths. Schools of great silver tarpon may then be seen, and they give the spring its name. At other seasons its waters rise bubbling and gurgling, not with heat, but from some sudden subterranean pressure. At such times the waters of Lake Butler, a mile away, are seen to fall. It is believed that there is some connection between the two bodies of water and that the spring is an outlet for the waters of the lake in the rainy season.—Argonaut.

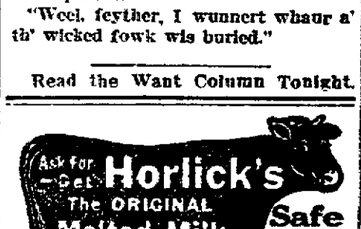

You Can't Find Them.

They used to walk through the Scottish cemeteries on the Sabbath by way of maintaining the proper rigorous mental attitude. Sandy MacTosh, who had never been suspected of brilliance of thought, returned home from one of these Sunday excursions and said, "Feyther, I took a bit walk about th' cemetery th' day, an' I readit a' th' inscriptions on th' tomestanes."

"Aye? An' whit wis yer thochts efter ye had feenished?" asked his stern parent.

"Weel, feyther, I wunnert whaur a' th' wicked fowk wis buried."

Mrs. Jennie A. Williams.

Mrs. Jennie Alice Williams, aged 38 years, wife of Floyd Williams, 368 North Eleventh street, died late last night at her home, following an illness of seven weeks. Death was due to typhoid fever. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Williams, formerly of Lancaster, O., came to Newark several years ago with her husband. Since coming here she has been prominently identified with the Central Church of Christ, of which she was a member. She is survived by her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moyer, of Lancaster, and four sisters, Mrs. Eva Lewis of this city, Mrs. Daisy Thrush and Mrs. Lewis Smith, both of Lancaster, Mrs. Emma Eaton of Columbus, and one brother, Alvie Moyer.

Oakley Brehm.

Oakley Brehm, the five months old son of Mrs. Moody Brehmm of Kirkersville, W. Va., died last night at the home of Toby Brehm, 47 Front street, following a short illness. Death was due to scarlet fever. An effort is being made to arrange to ship the body into West Virginia but it is not known if this will be permitted by the West Virginia authorities.

Mrs. Brehm came to Newark two weeks ago for a visit and brought her two children with her. A short time after her arrival, both children were stricken with the fever. The oldest child is well on the road to recovery. About six months ago, Mrs. Brehm's husband was killed in a mine explosion in Virginia.

At times it takes courage and firm resolution to tell the simple truth.

DO PEOPLE WAIT

Until they are prosperous and successful to carry a bank account and pay their bills by checks?

—Possibly in some cases, and if so, they have lost a valuable aid in their efforts.

—Our observation is that most people become prosperous through handling their affairs in a systematic manner, and that A CHECKING ACCOUNT IS THE ONE GREATEST HELP IN SO DOING.

—Do not overlook this powerful aid to getting ahead.

—Your bank book and check book give a complete record of your money transactions, saving other bookkeeping, preserving receipts in the form of cancelled checks for all payments.

—Give this plan a trial.

New York, Nov. 15.—Overnight developments in the railway labor situation were again reflected in the relative heaviness of rails at today's opening. Reading yielded 1¾ with less severe recessions in others of that group. Declines extending from material fractions to a point were registered by Mexican Petroleum, Republic Iron, Crucible and U. S. Steels and the principal motors, while Pittsburgh coal lost 2 points. These reversals were more than counterbalanced by the strength of shipping shares, coppers, paper issues, American Can, Industrial Alcohol, Virginia Iron and Gulf states steel. Bethlehem Steel rose 14 points.

Reactions resulting mainly from the heaviness of rails wiped out most initial gains but the list moved forward again later, industeriales being accelerated by the $5 advance in the price of steel rails. Republic iron, Sloss Sheffield and Gulf states steel issues rose to new high records and Union Bag also sold at its highest quotation. Shipping shares were in further request with American Can but leading equipments became increasingly irregular at recessions of of 2 to 3 points. Central Leather and motors displaying a similar trend. Pressure was renewed at midday with another setback. Bonds were irregular.

American smelting and other coppers, as well as low priced specialties and mining shares, registered further gains in the later dealings, rails making moderate improvements. The close was irregular.

Hope and Faith.

Hope is the boy, a blind, headlong, pleasant fellow good to chase swallows with salt; Faith is the grave, experienced yet smiling man. Hope lives on ignorance; open eyed Faith is built upon a knowledge of our life, of the tyranny of circumstance and the frailty of human resolution. Hope looks for unqualified success, but Faith counts certainly on failure and takes honorable defeat to be a form of victory. Hope is a kind old pagan, but Faith grew up in Christian days and early learned humility. In the one temper a man is indignant that he cannot spring up in a clap to heights of elegance and virtue; in the other, out of a sense of his infirmities, he is filled with confidence because a year has come and gone and he has still preserved some rags of honor.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Crest of the Bloody Hand.

The noted English family of the Holtes has for its badge a bloody hand, and this sinister badge commemorates a wager that ended in a crime. Sir Thomas Holte one day in 1612 was hunting. He invited his comrades home with him to dinner, and as he rode along he made a heavy bet on his cook's punctuality. But the cook failed him for once. When he got home dinner was not ready. The jeers of his companions at this failure, together with his huge loss in the matter of the wager, enraged him so that he ran into the kitchen, seized a cleaver and split the cook's head open with it. Afterward his family, to keep this crime alive, adopted for its crest the bloody hand of the cook killer.

Dickens and His Wife.

Commenting on the unhappy relations between Dickens and his wife, Goldwin Smith wrote in one of his last papers: "It was a common case. Dickens had married at a low level, and his wife had not risen with him; otherwise there was no fault on her side. The matrimonial history of writers of works of imagination has often been unhappy. Their imagination turns the woman into an angel, and then they find that she is a woman."

She Knew.

At an evening party the hostess had coaxed a protesting guest to sing. After the song she went up to him smiling.

"Oh, Mr. Jenkins," she said, "you must never tell me again that you can't sing—I know now!"—New York Telegraph.

First Recorded Solar Eclipse.

Herodotus gives us the initial record of a total eclipse of the sun when he observes that about 610 B. C., in the last struggle between the Medes and Lydians, hostilities were brought to a sudden close by the day turning into night.

Case of Admiration.

Her Dad—So you want to marry my daughter. I like your nerve!

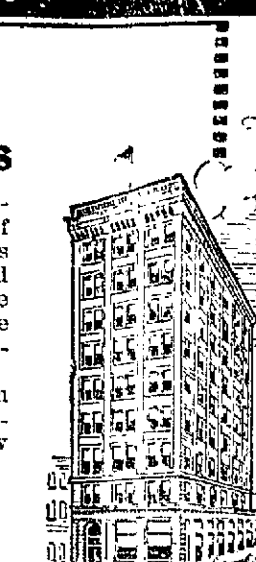

Suitor—Well, sir you ought to. I spent a whole lot of time working it up.—Boston Transcript.

JESSE SNELLING
26 LANSING BLK.

Leading Up to It.

Some Scotch yokels were enjoying the fun of the fair. Seeing an old fiddler in the street, a few of them went over to him, and one, handing him twopence, asked him to play the "Battle of Stirling Brig." The old fiddler took the money and went rasping away the same as before. The yokels getting tired of this, the spokesman again went over to the fiddler and said to him, "Hi, man, that's no' the 'Battle of Stirling Brig.'" "I ken," replied the old fiddler. "That's the skirmish before the battle."

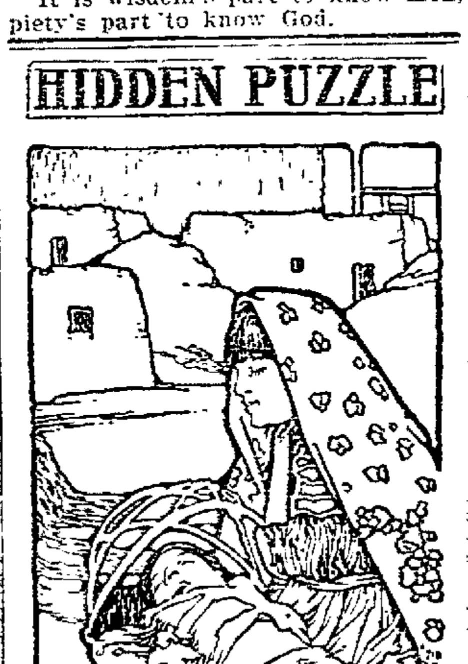

Metchnikoff's Dramatic Death.

Professor Metchnikoff, says the World's Work, came to his laboratory on July 13, 1916. He did not attempt to hide his uneasiness at the weakness of his heart. He surprised his students, however, by saying as he put on his things to go home: "Tomorrow is the 14th, isn't it? So we won't work. I am afraid that this will be my last day here. I cannot last two days. I shall die tomorrow."

He died, in fact, on the 15th, and his pathetic farewell made a deep impression even on the pathology students.

ETHEL M. GATES.
Var-ne-sis Enthusiast.

"I think it is about 17 years since I first noticed my finger joints were enlarging and my hands were becoming very stiff. My knees also troubled me a great deal in going up or down stairs. Gradually I could feel the disease creeping from one joint to another until almost every joint in my body was involved.

"The pain was terrible and at times would draw my head back. For months I was unable to lift my head from the pillow and unable to feed myself. My feet and ankles were too sore and painful to bear my weight, and I was always guarding my knees for fear someone would accidentally brush against me. Even heavy teams going by the house would affect me.

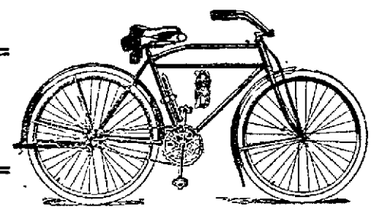

"When I remained perfectly quiet I was fairly comfortable, but the least move would cause terrible pain. My joints seemed dry and one could hear them grind as though there was sand in them. I treated with physicians and tried many remedies, but the disease continued to spread from one joint to another and I was becoming more helpless each day.

"My case seemed to be like many that Var-ne-sis helped and I decided to try it. The improvement was not noticeable at first, but gradually I was able to sleep better and in the morning the stiffness was not so severe, the pain gradually disappeared, and by continuing the medicine I am today absolutely free from rheumatism, not an ache or a pain, and I give the credit to Var-ne-sis. I would be glad to talk to anyone about my case, for I feel there are many others that will find help if they will only take this wonderful medicine."

After the refreshments have been served and promptly at 7:30 o'clock the work of conferring the degree will begin, so that those of the candidates who desire may take an early train home.

Big preparations have been made and the team has made great improvements in their work so that there is no doubt but that the work as it will be conferred this time will be the best it has ever been done It is hoped that this will be the biggest day in the Council has ever had and one to be long remembered by all.

Come and help the members make this a big success and show the Coshocton class what real hospitality Bigelow Council can dispense.

Amusements

ALHAMBRA.

Some of his principal pictures are: "The Christian," in which he played John Storm, "Love Sunset," "413," "The Sins of the Mothers," "A Million Bid," and "My Lady's Slipper."

In "The Scarlet Runner," which is shown at the Alhambra every Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. Williams is seen in one of the best roles of his entire career.

"The Gilded Cage" is a gripping, dynamic, intensely interesting drama. It has beeen called "the sweetest story ever told." In it the wonderful personality and great histrionic ability of Alice Brady has full swing and the result is a film that takes high rank. The story sweeps onward with a rush that carries the spectators off their feet. The scenario was written by Frances Marion and the film was directed by Hadley Knoles. Tonight and tomorrow.

Tauru Aoki the clever wife of the distinguished Japanese actor, Sessue Hayakawa, who will be seen on the Paramount Program at the Alhambra on Friday and Saturday supported by Myrtle Stedman and an excellent cast in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Soul of Kura-San," learned geisha dancing when she was a little girl in the land of the cherry blossoms. Since she has been in America, she has always kept up her dancing and several times has rehearsed American society girls in the dances of the Mikado for social functions.

THE AUDITORIUM.
"Romeo and Juliet."

Crowds saw the Metro production "Romeo and Jeuliet" at the Auditorium yesterday and the verdict of all "Best Ever and Most Elaborate" production filmed.

The epoch-making screen production of "Romeo and Juliet," with Francis X. Bushman as "Romeo" and beautiful Beverly Bayne as "Juliet" is presented to the public with the fullest confidence as to its reception. Over three months were consumed in the actual work of photography, and the cost of production amounted to upwards of $250,000. Not even in the lavish stage productions made by such wizards of stagecraft as Sir Henry Irving and Richard Mansfield has such magnificence been dreamed of, much less attempted. The costumes alone cost $35,000, and the reproduction of the market-place of mediaeval Verona, with its eighteen buildings, meant an outlay of $25,000 more.

Director-in-Chief John W. Noble, and the star, Francis X. Bushman, supervised the production. Their assistant directors were Edward J. Shulter, technical director, Edward Elsner, Rudolph De Gordova (Shakesperian adviser), Leander De Cordova. Edward Lewers and Harry Sothern. Mr. Elsner has acted as stage manager to all the greatest stars of the present day, including Sarah Bernhardt and Ellen Terry, and Mr. Sothern, a nephew of E. H. Sothern, assisted his uncle in Shakesperian production for seven years.

The last showing of this wonderful film will be given today at 2, 4:15, 6:30 and 8:45 p. m.

"Auto Girls."

Next week's attraction at the Auditorium theatre, starting with the matinee Monday will be the speed show, Simonds and Lake's "Auto Girls" in the merry musical skit entitled "At Beauty Rest", featuring Carol Schroder, Harry Seymour, the Funny little Dutchman and James J. Lake, supported by Jack Lewis, Smiling Rose Allen, Billy Hallman, Madeline Webb and a large girly chorus.

Between the acts an olio will be offered featuring Carol Schroder on a "Novel Creation" and the extra added attraction Capt. Barnett & Son "The Boys Who Never Grew Up," in their absurdity "At the Club." Seats ready Friday morning.

Cohan to Enter Films.

Following several years of absolute indifference to all inducements, even those of the most flattering and substantial nature, George M. Cohan has decided to enter the motion picture field. The announcement is made by Artcraft Pictures Corporation on the eve of its first release. Mary Pickford in "Less than the Dust."

For several weeks Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, has been promising that Mary Pickford would soon have a famous companion in the Artcraft circle, which he describes as the foundation of a system "to handle the headliners in motion pictures."

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the preliminary announcement of the formation of the George M. Cohan Film Corporation is the statement that in addition to his services as producer and player, Mr. Cohan will devote writing for the screen. That in itself is a pronounced boon to the industry.

These pictures will be seen only at the Auditorium theatre. "Less Than the Dust" will be shown some time next week.

AG. SCHOOL AT HEBRON; O. S. U. TEACHERS THERE.

A week's school of agriculture and home economics will be held at Hebron, Feb. 26 to March 2. The school will consist of lectures, laboratory work and demonstrations. Instruction will be in charge of members of Ohio State University college of agriculture extension service.

Howard Call, traveling organizer of these courses, will assist in arranging the details. All epenses, except those incurred locally, will be paid from funds provided by the federal Smith-Lever act.

NEWARK MAN SAW BOCQUEL FALL TO DEATH

Mr. Charles B. Stevens, formerly with the Licking County Bank and Trust Company, now living at 3930 Third street, San Diego, Calif., witnessed the death of Bocquel, the "sky dragon" at San Diego a few days ago.

As a terrible climax to what he had boasted would be the "most spectacular flight in the history of aviation," Joe Bocquel, while thousands of horrified exposition visitors watched, plunged to his death, as has already been announced in the Advocate press dispatches. A few hours before, Bocquel regarded as America's premier trick aeroplanist, had remarked: "Beachey has gone, Christofferson is dead, Art Smith is crippled for life. Who will be next?" And Bocquel was next.

Writing a letter to the Advocate Mr. Stevens said:

"When visitors come out to San Diego and possibly walk down street, they are sometimes surprised to see an aeroplane over them in the sky, and they are naturally pleased to see such a wonderful sight which to the native is an every day affair. As we pay no particular attention to these daily sights, so you in the East, when you read the news and learn of the death of one of these flyers, probably pay as little attention to the matter as we do to the flying. Last week there was at the exposition an exhibition of feat flying. It could be seen at almost any point in the city. This exhibition was given by Joe Bocquel. He was marvelous. You have noticed his death. This occurred last Saturday. We had been delighted with his surprisingly spectacular flying, both by day and by night. He would leave his position at the grounds and ascend very rapidly and in three circles above the grounds he would be at a height of about 5,000 to 6,000 feet. Then he would let out two streams of smoke, if it were day, and at night he could be seen by two streams of fire. This enabled the onlooker to tell exactly what antics he performed. He not only looped the loop, as both Beechy and Art Smith had done, but he turned cart wheels, and would drop straight down, turning round and round all the way until he would think it time to correct his position and sail off safely as a bird. This he did for seven times on different days and nights. On Thursday last he was wonderful. He made his drop and there were those who believed it was to be his last, but relief came to strained nerves when they saw him pick up and fly away and with a few more leaps, dives and somersaults, calmly move off to his landing. On his fatal Saturday he performed in this same graceful, wonderful and perfectly marvelous manner. When he came to his drop, it was no different than any others, except that he approached the ground within 200 feet. Some one, who assumed knowledge of air currents and of conversations with some of the aviators, said that it had been noticed that close proximity to the Cabrillo Canon, (over which the beautiful Cabrillo Bridge gives entrance to the west side of the Exposition Grounds), discovered air currents that were very strong and enough so to almost draw an aeroplane within its grasp, like undertow in the ocean. This person believes that this was what caught Bocquel on Saturday, and took him away where so many others have preceded him. While he was performing in his wonderful manner, Mr. G. A. Davidson, president of the Exposition, had in his hand a medal which was to be presented to him on his return to earth. It is hard to describe the feeling which prevailed throughout the city after his fatality. He seemed to be immune from death, he had such control of his machine. Beechey was wonderful, Art Smith was excellent and surpassed Beechey, but Bocquel far outclassed either of them in his exhibition and the easy manner of doing his work. You will find herewith a clipping from the local paper which may give you a better idea of what he did. If this is of any value to your paper I will be glad to have you use it in any way you desire. It may not be of as much value to your locality as it seems to us on the ground.

Just in receipt of the Advocate with the announcement of Cookey Jones' candidacy at Buckeye Lake and no doubt by this time he has been elected, especially after making such pleas with the dead. With best wishes.

CHARLES B. STEVENS.

DOWNEY BETTER THAN KELLEY IN KENOSHA FIGHT.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 15. — A stranger entered our midst last night and trimmed one of our favorite citizens, Spike Kelley, a Columbus, O., product, who battled 10 rounds with the Chicagoan in Mr. Rhodes' operahouse. At the end there was not any question about the outcome, for Downey piled up enough points at different times during the session to win several ordinary battles.

This doesn't mean that Kelley didn't fight, however. He fought as good as he knew how, which is considerable, but still this was several points shy of what was needed to trim the Buckeye lad, who was making his first appearance in this section.

Downey was as strong as a heavyweight, despite a four-pound-weight advantage to the other fellow, and Kelley, with a world of experience behind him, couldn't figure out a trick that would keep Bryan away from him or one that would stop his consistent rushing.

It was a pretty fight to look at for there was something doing every minute the two principals were in the ring. The bout started at such a rate it was thought both men would cave in from the pace before the fifth round was over, but both were still there at the finish.

ZANESVILLE IS PREPARING FOR M'DANIEL GAME

The Armacos football team of Zanesville is making big preparations for the Sunday football game at Zanesville with the McDaniel team of this city. Zanesville was defeated on their visit here two weeks ago, and is determined to even the score next Sunday.

The pottery town boys are loding for the game in great style and the fans too are preparing to turn out to root for their favorites. A big automobile parade is scheduled to be held before the game which will lend interest to the contest. All summed up, Sunday's Newark-Zanesville game is going to be one of the best pulled in the clay city this season.

The McDaniel team will be strengthened by several new players and will be in condition to put up the battle necessary to win. Indications here point to a crowd of more than 200 fans accompanying the team Sunday to pull for Newark against their old rivals, Zanesville.

DENISON GETS READY FOR BIG WESLEYAN GAME.

Granville, Nov. 15.—Active practice was begun yesterday by the Denison football team for the coming game with Onio Wesleyan. Scrimmage, new formations and a talk by Coach Livingston was the order of the day. And then, as a conclusion to the afternoon's performance and to show his displeasure with the whole run of things in general, he ordered the entire squad to take a fast quarter-mile, which order was complied with to the letter.

At present it looks very much as if "Sid" Jenkins will start the Wesleyan contest at left end, which position the Cambridge lad occupied in the game at Akron last week. If such is the case that position will be well taken care of, and supporters of the Granville team need not fear for the safety of it Saturday. It is likely that Meredith will resume his old position at tackle and, if such be the case, Critz will, in all likelihood, play at a guard.

FOOTBALL GAME WON BY PRAYER SAYS CAPTAIN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Decatur, Ills., Nov. 15.—Prayers on the gridiron won the championship of the "Little Nineteen" conference for the Millikin University football team according to a statement made today by Captain Eugene Sutherd. At critical points in all games during the season, Sutherd said he called his players about him and prayer. "Then they went in with renewed vigor and made their first down every time," the captain asserted.

FITZ ALSO PLAYS ZANESVILLE TEAM; PRACTICE TONIGHT.

On next Sunday the Fitzsimmons team meets the fast going Zanesville Marks a 145 pound aggregation which has built up an enviable reputation for being one of the best of its class in the state.

Although Fitzsimmons will be outweighed 10 pounds to the man this will not make the difference it would seem to, as they have been "conceding" weight every game.

Fitzsimmons will practice tonight at the usual place. Every player who expects to get in the Zanesville game must be present.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

YOUNG GOTCH HAS TOUGH JOB FOR THURSDAY

Columbus Man Will Meet Turk Wrestler in Semi-Final to Bowser-"Unknown" Bout at Auditorium.

Al Haft (Young Gotch), of Columbus, the man who for the past several months had issued about two dozen challenges to Paul Bowser, world's middleweight wrestling champion, will be afforded the opportunity Thursday night at the Auditorium, of showing the local fans his ability as a grappler.

Gotch is slated to meet Charles Metro, the "terrible turk" of Boston, in a 30 minute limit semi-final to the Bowser-"Unknown" bout. The Columbus man and Metro, both have been working hard for their bout and expect to put up an exhibition which will crowd the main event for honors. In addition to this bout another good preliminary has been arranged for the curtain raiser.

Bowser, the champion has been working out daily with Metro for his match with Billy Schrober's "Unknown" and its confident of defeating the Indianapolis man's protege. But the "Unknown" may have a surprise to spring on the Newark man when they step onto the mat. Billy Schrober who will probably meet Bowser here in the near future will be one of the most interested spectators at the bout, because this will be his first opportunity of getting a line on the local man's ability.

The ticket sale opened yesterday morning at the Auditorium with a rush, assuring the management of another large crowd. The sale of ringside seats at the various over the city, has been better than the average, which indication points to plenty of fans being on the stage when Referee Webber calls "time."

The doors at the Auditorium will be opened shortly after 7 o'clock and the first bout of the show will be started promptly at 8 o'clock. This will bring the principals of the main go together about one hour later.

OLDEST FIRE CHIEF DIES AT MANSFIELD; FIREMAN 55 YEARS.

Mansfield, Nov. 15.—Fire Chief George Knofflock, aged 69, treasurer of the International Association of Fire Engineers, and considered the oldest fireman in the United States in years of service, died at his home here this afternoon after a short illness. He entered the fire department service here as a volunteer in 1861 and in 1885 was appointed chief.

He was a veteran of the civil war and was with Sherman on his march to the sea. He was formerly president of the Ohio Firemen's Association and was widely known over the United States.

Mr. Knofflock once belonged to the old Mississippi Fire Company of New Orleans.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look years younger! Use Grandmother's recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur and nobody will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

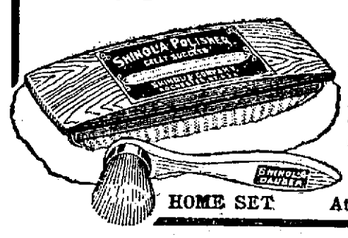

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ION-O-LEX UNGUENT

Probably the most important discovery that has been made in the field of medicine in fifty years.

A DETROIT PHYSICIAN WRITES:

"I am commencing to believe that Ion-o-lex Unguent is all—and even more than you claim for it—

"In one bad case of tonsillitis the temperature was reduced from 103 to normal in 24 hours. In former attacks this patient has always suffered from 5 to 10 days.

"My own wife has suffered with spasmodic contractions of the throat for 12 or 14 years, and it has always been necessary to administer narcotics for relaxation.

"The last attack was unusually severe, being a combination of the throat trouble and pneumonia—Ion-o-lex Unguent and Liquid kept the disease under perfect control, and by the fifth morning the temperature was reduced from 103 to normal—Ion-o-lex is the only thing we have ever found that has given her any relief whatever.

"I am using Ion-o-lex Unguent in my general practice, and cannot say too much for it."

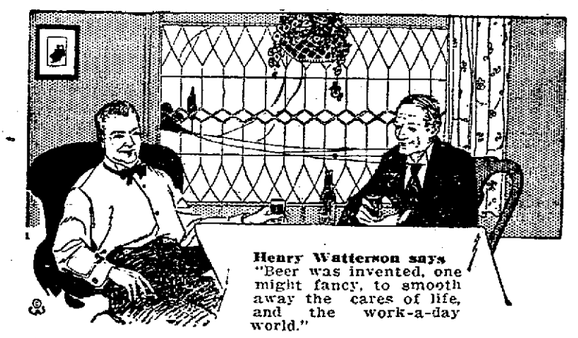

Another prominent Detroit Physician prescribed Ion-o-lex Unguent as a last resort for a deep-seated felon, upon which an operation had been pronounced absolutely necessary. Inside of 24 hours the patient was so much better that the operation was entirely unnecessary, and recovery was surprisingly speedy.

Use Ion-o-lex Unguent wherever there is local inflammation—It should always be used in coughs, sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, pneumonia, neuritis, acute rheumatism, eczema, erysipelas, and in all cases of burns, scalds and wounds or anywhere else that there is apt to be inflammation.

Dead Reckoning.

Dead reckoning is a term in navigation to express the estimation that is made of a ship's position without having recourse to observation of the celestial bodies. It is made by observing the way she makes by the log and the course on which she has been steered, making allowance for drift, leeway, etc.

Cat Medicine.

The ancient physicians had a firm belief in the healing powers of different portions of the cat, probably from some confusion existing in their minds with regard to its nine lives. One of them gives as a valuable recipe to cure fevers two pints of water mixed with three drops of blood taken from the ear of an ass and certain parts of a cat's digestive organs.

Life is a dream in this world that is continued in the next.

SUPREME COURT WILL HEAR LABOR CASES TOGETHER

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Washington, Nov. 15.—The supreme court has been asked to assign for hearing on December 4th two cases involving organized labor and particularly the right of workmen to organize unions. Both cases are from West Virginia in litigation of the Hitchman Coal and Coke Company against the United Mine Workers and its officers and of the Eagle Glass Manufacturing Co. against the American Flint Glass Workers Union and its officers. The latter case was reached on the court's docket today but request was filed to postpone its hearing until December 4th, with the United Mine Workers' case.

In the United Mine Workers' suit, validity of a finding by Federal Judge Dayton that the union is an illegal organization, is appealed from. In the Glass Workers' Union case, the Eagle Company of Wellsburg, W. Va, is appealing from a decree holding that the union is not an unlawful organization. The Glass Workers' case has never been heard by the supreme court; the United Mine Workers' case was argued last March, but no decision was reached and reargument before a full bench was ordered. The court recently put into effect sentences imposed upon four Mine Workers' leaders for contempt of court in violating an injunction during the strike troubles of the Hitchman Company, of Judge Dayton against the interference with the coal company's employes.

The court today agreed to hear the mine and glass workers' cases together but set no date.

COLUMBUS SHOPS MAY BOOST PRICE FOR HAIRCUTS

Weird Music From a Mine.

I recall an interesting experience at the Nueva Luz shaft, the deepest shaft on the Veta Madre, in the Guanajuato district, Mexico. It is 2,031 feet deep, cut out of solid rock. Iron buckets, guided by wire ropes, are used for hoisting men, rock and supplies, and even an experienced engineer is excused a feeling of fear and trepidation when straddling the bale over this yawning hole.

The almost nude natives, oblivious of danger, jumped aboard, holding their torch of candles in the free hand, and as they were lowered began to sing. A flood of melody filled the shaft, a full crescendo reverberated from wall to wall, followed by softer cadences, and as I peered down into the hole the bucket continued its slow descent, the lights of the torches became more and more indistinct, the darkness deepened, and the prayerful song came up with decreasing volume until it seemed like a distant echo from the unknown. Then there was no light visible, no anthem audible, and I involuntarily said "Amen." —Frank H. Probert in National Geographic Magazine.

The Bargain Pin.

Some years ago, when Holbrook Blinn, the actor, was playing in a London production, he went to Ascot for the races one afternoon. In an interval between races Blinn was in a refreshment booth when a slinky individual addressed him and wanted to know whether Blinn wouldn't buy a handsome diamond scarfpin at a great bargain. Blinn said "No," but the stranger was persistent.

"It's worth £20 if it's worth a tanner," said the furtive one, "and you can 'ave it for five, guv'nor. Just take a look at it, anyway."

"Well, show it to me, then," said Blinn. "Where is it?"

The other took Blinn by the arm and pointed off to the right, where an elderly gentleman stood.

"In the necktie of that old cove over yonder!" he said.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Millennium Will Come:

When rulers have learned to sacrifice personal ambition for the lives and happiness of their subjects.

When the rich cease to extort from the community the necessaries of life.

When patriotism inspires the maker of laws and the subject of laws.

When the strong help the weak.

When every one's motto is, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

When history ceases to repeat itself. —Life.

HAPPINESS.

"I am sometimes accused of being too optimistic, but I have never denied the troubles and sorrows of life. I never said that men are happy, but only that they might be; that if they are not so the fault is generally their own; that most of us throw away more happiness than we enjoy."

Too Much Excitement.

"You say your cook has quit?"

"Yes."

"What was the trouble?"

"She wanted Saturdays off."

"You might have conceded that much."

"I was willing, but it often required two or three days for her to recuperate."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ENGLAND DEFENDS BLACK LIST STAND; WON'T EXTEND IT

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Washington, Nov. 15.—Further negotiations between the American and British governments over America's objections to Great Britain's trade black list were considered certain here today. A British reply to the latest American protest, made public last night by the state department, defends the British position and leaves open the door for further exchanges.

Great Britain's defense of the black list declares the measure is purely a municipal regulation, denies it invades neutral rights and asserts its purpose is to shorten the war. There can be no contention, the note declares, that the British have not the right to deny the facilities of British commerce to those who assist the cause of Britain's enemies, wherever domiciled.

"The feelings which I venture to think have prompted the note," the foreign minister declares in the British reply, "must have been that the measures will be expanded to an extent which will result in their interfering with genuine neutral commerce; perhaps, also that they are not exclusively designed for belligerent purposes, but are rather an attempt to forward our own trade interests at the expense of neutral commerce . . . ; and that they are, from a military point of view, necessary."

Even these conclusions, it is asserted are wrong. The foreign ministers promises the measures will not be extended further than is absolutely necessary, declares they strictly war measures, and says that the end of the war is not near enough in sight for Britain to neglect any just means to bring about its termination.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Advertisement.

Nuxated Iron to Make New Age of Beautiful Women and Vigorous Iron Men

Say Physicians—Quickly Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Most Astonishing Youthful Power Into the Veins of Men—It Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Nervous, "Rundown" Folks 200 Per Cent in Two Weeks' Time.

A Wonderful Discovery Which Promises to Mark a New Era in Medical Science.

New York, N. Y.—Since the remarkable discovery of organic iron, Nuxated Iron or "Fer Nuxated" as the French call it, has taken the country by storm. It is conservatively estimated that over three million persons are taking it in this country alone. Most astonishing results are reported from its use by physicians and laymen. So much so that well-known doctors predict that we shall soon have a new age of far more beautiful, rosy-cheeked women and vigorous iron men.

Dr. King, a New York physician and author, when interviewed on the [illegible] said, [illegible] lives of thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver, heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their disease was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood.

"Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with a blood pressure of a boy of twenty and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. [illegible]

[illegible] Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete and prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques another New York physician, said, "I have never before given out any medicinal information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older in-organic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron, that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron, and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Wm. A. Erman, Evans Cut-Rate Drug Store and all good druggists.

RESISTANCE

OF GERMAN TROOPS IN ANCRE VALLEY WAS INSIGNIFICANT SAY BRITISH OFFICERS.

Prisoners Say Bombardment Destroyed Machine Gun Emplacements Making Defense Against Infantry Impossible.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

With the British Armies in France, via London, Nov. 15, 4:30 A. M.—The British advance along both sides of the Ancre, which continued yesterday with the capture of the village of Beaucourt, is considered by the British commander as one of the most important successes in the four months' of the offensives. They insist especially on the relative insignificent character of the German resistance in a position which they consider of great strategic importance and one of the most highly fortified on the entire western front.

More than five thousand prisoners have been collected in the extensive subterranean galleries and chambers which were sunk on both sides of the valley and were miles in extent. Five hundred Germans surrendered in a tunnel near St. Pierre Divion, which was a mile and a half long. This tunnel gave access to scores of electric lighted chambers in which companies of infantry were housed and which contained quantities of machine guns and bombs. Another seven hundred prisoners were caught in a ravine south of Beaumont-Hamel where they were cut off by the first attack on Monday afternoon.

The British success south of the Ancre was increased owing to the fact that the Germans in this section were on the point of being relieved by fresh troops when the attack was launched. The result was that twice the normal strength of the garrison was trapped by the barrage fire. Among the prisoners taken here were many men of the 93rd infantry of which the Duke of Albany is honorory colonel-in-chief. The regiment lost heavily. According to the prisoners, the duke was waiting in the rear to inspect the regiment when it left the fighting line.

The majority of the infantry fighting was done with grenades instead of bayonets. The British swarmed over the surface between the trenches and hurled showers of bombs into the German dugouts and shelters, capturing in quick succession seven parallel rows of the main German trenches between Beaumont-Hamel and Beaucourt. Prisoners from the Prussian guards told the Associated Press correspondent that the terrific British bombardment destroyed the machine gun emplocements and made resistance to the infantry charge impossible. They said they were cut off from their reserves on an entire front of seven miles which was isolated by the British curtain fire. They declared they were glad to surrender.

A tank which helped to destroy machine gun positions at the bottom of the valley south of the Ancre, was attacked with bombs by the Germans who swarmed about it in large numbers.

All of the attackers were killed by the guns of the tank.

Two-thirds of the British casualties south of the Ancre were walking cases. The total losses were lighter in proportion than in many previous operation of the past four months. The British attack was pressed continually last night. All ground as far as Beaucourt has been well consolidated and the troops are pushing beyond Feenele. The Germans so far have not attempted any counter attacks.

Granville

(Special to the Advocate.)

Granville, Nov. 15.—This long suffering village has been free from its Broadway obstructions for some time past, and if the Licking county commissioners could find it in their heart to level down the few feet of the Newark pike necessary to make a smooth connection between the town and township terminals there would be a beautiful thoroughfare opened for traffic. Main and Cherry streets are beginning the work of improvement.

The all-day meeting of the A. F. F. W. continues to be well attended and supplies yesterday were gratifying, being 31 packages of dressings (25 in a package); 5 bed pads; 12 comfort pillows; 28 bandages; 14 surgical sponges, and a bushel of clippings for filling the pillows. Mrs. John Geach reported that the committee, consisting of herself, Mrs. Clemons and Mrs. R. S. Wright, had packed a box 4x2x2, and shipped it, in which were contained: 280 bandages; 27 packages of compresses, 24 packages small compresses, 24 bed pads, 24 packages of sponges, 3 packages of slings, 2 comfort bags, 2 Peter Coopers, 1 air cushion, 66 comfort pillows, a French letter in Mrs. C's. comfort bag. Mr. Bash did the hauling without charge. Mrs. Case reported that Mrs. E. Morrow, Mrs. J. W. Rohrer, Miss Helen Ackley and Miss Grace Chamberlin had been added to the publicity committee and that the neat posters furnished by Mr. Kussmaul have been placed in the vestibules of the churches and in the store windows and that Miss Chamberlin will devote desk room in the Granville Library to the literature sent on from headquarters, including pictures, &c. Miss Minnie Jones read a letter from her old neighbor, Dwight Sample, who is now in a French field hospital, and the president, Mrs. Riggs, read the weekly letter from Paris. Among other items in this letter attention was called to the letter which accompanied a pillow sent by a little girl who said that if any French pussy got shotted in the neck it could lay its head on her pillow." She is assured that the "French pussy" with two little pussies being quite well, her pillow was given to a wounded soldier.

Mrs. Homer Davis of Newark was a Granville visitor yesterday and made a morning call on the workers for the A. F. F. W. in Linden falls. Mrs. Davis is interested in the Newark committee which is to meet in the Y. M. C. A. building for work on Thursday.

At the business meeting of the A. F. F. W. yesterday afternoon, an interesting letter was read from Dwight Sample formerly of Granville who enlisted over a year ago with the British army in France. The letter states that he has been wounded though only seriously enough to lay him in the hospital for a couple of weeks where he is enjoying the first rest he has had since enlisting. He speaks of the splendid qualities of the English, the Canadians and the Australian soldiers with whom he has been thrown; he speaks of the coming election and of the interest being taken in Europe, as to the result, though personally he fails to see how Europe can be affected, whoever should be successful. The letter is not dated, it gives no idea of the writer's location but speaks freely of personal matters, and expresses the conviction that his term in the hospital is to be brief.

Announcement is made through a letter to Granville friends of the engagement of Miss Fay Marlow of Chicago, formerly of Granville, to Dr. Arthur G. Catt of Rensselaer, Ind. Miss Marlow is a graduate of Denison University and a graduate nurse of the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago. She and her sister, Miss Laura Marlow, with her fiance, Dr. Catt, will spend the thanksgiving recess at the home of their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Marlow at Niagara Falls.

Robert Goodell who is engaged in business in Indianapolis, younger son of Prof. and Mrs. C. E. Goodell, is spending a week at the home of his parents in East College street.

Miss Lelia C. Brown of the organ department of Denison Conservatory will give an organ recital this evening at 7:45 in the Baptist church, assisted by Mr. R. W. Soule of the voice department. The program is unusually interesting an dthe public is cordially invited.
